ARTISTIC DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

It is my great pleasure to welcome you back to Persephone Theatre. It has been 20 months now since a production has graced our stage. As someone who has always struggled to imagine my life without theatre, this reality was inconceivable. But, we are back - and having you here means the world to us.

While this year's season is smaller to better navigate audience, artist, and staff safety during this persistent pandemic, we have packed all the comedy, drama, reflection, and entertainment you expect from us into these four shows. I hope we can look forward to seeing you again at It's a Wonderful Life: A Live Radio Play, The Mountaintop, and The Revolutionists.

Cottagers and Indians, by the always funny and thought-provoking Drew Hayden Taylor, marks my first production at Persephone Theatre as Artistic Director. I have been on the job for a month now and I am already in love with this city and its incredibly vibrant arts community. I so look forward to getting to know you, our audience, and enjoying incredible live performances together.

Thank you for being here and for your ongoing support of Persephone Theatre. We literally couldn't do what we do without you.

Sincerely,
Heather Cant

DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

It's hard not to take sides, but it is something we as individuals tend to do. Directing Cottagers & Indians has indeed been both wonderful and challenging

In this story, you have two very different worlds occupying the one space. There's an obvious division literally, and also symbolically. As the Director, it was important for me not to take one side, but to listen and see both as a neutral mind, to recognize that in the end we are human. We are just trying to survive and do what we think is right, even if the other disagrees. That makes us our own persons.

I've been blessed to be here working with all these amazing artists, designers and builders. The work everyone has done in making this a welcoming environment, the generosity, collaboration and kind hearts has made this experience inspiring.

Family, friends, community, from me to all of you, thank you for being here and I hope you enjoy Cottagers & Indians by Drew Hayden Taylor! Also, thank you Persephone Theatre for taking a chance on me.

Jennifer Dawn Bishop

COMMITMENT TO RECONCILIATION

Persephone Theatre believes the performing arts have an essential part to play in the work of reconciliation. We believe our work as a theatre organization can and should consider how it can contribute. Persephone Theatre offers this as an aspirational statement to communicate our dedication to reconciliation with Indigenous peoples in our community, Canada, and throughout Turtle Island.

Persephone Theatre creates theatre in Misâskwatôminihk, meaning "at the Saskatoon berry" in Nêhiyawewin (Cree), which is colonially known as Saskatoon. We are grateful to have the opportunity to live and create on this land. We acknowledge and renew our obligations to the original caretakers of this land, our Treaty 6 partners, the Cree, Saulteaux, Nakota, and Dene. This place is also the homeland of the Métis, as well as home to other Indigenous nations, and we extend the same commitment to them and all Indigenous peoples in Canada.

Persephone Theatre exists to enrich society by providing a supportive venue for artists and audiences to create and experience theatre to inspire and reflect our community. It is a place to encourage dialogue, curiosity, empathy, and respect. These values inform the actions we can and will take to further reconciliation:

To create artistic programming and processes which:

- aid in understanding our colonial past and visioning a new future;
- celebrate Indigenous culture and history;
- foster dialogue in our community;
- honour the artistic sovereignty of Indigenous artists;
- support the creation of projects funded by the Creating, Knowing, and Sharing: The Arts and Cultures of First Nations, Inuit, and Métis Peoples program developed by the Canada Council for the Arts in response to Call to Action 83 issued by the Truth and Reconciliation Commission.

To provide arts education which:

- creates access to inclusive learning and training experiences that supports Indigenous approaches to storytelling and theatre creation;
- examines the intersection between Indigenous culture and storytelling with western theatre techniques;
- considers and overcomes social, economic, geographic, and cultural barriers so arts education can be for all young people.

To ensure Persephone Theatre:

- builds meaningful and respectful relationships with Indigenous theatre artists, technicians, administrators, educators, and audiences;
- uses its means as a well-resourced organization to uplift the work of Indigenous artists and theatre makers, as well as provide mentorship and support in our community;
- provides ongoing education opportunities of those employed by Persephone on colonial history, systemic injustice, and anti-oppression practices.

As an organization, Persephone Theatre recognizes our past actions have not always been in alignment with these stated aspirations and intentions. The organization has been complicit in contributing to a history of oppression, exclusion, and anti-Indigenous racism in our own work and in our industry. Moving forward, we are committed to our ongoing growth and learning in pursuit of equity and justice and furthering the broader call for action in Canadian theatre. We support the emergence of truth and shall actively contribute to shifting perspectives with the work we do in and with our community moving forward.

Reconciliation is a collaborative endeavour; it cannot be accomplished in isolation. We encourage community dialogue on this topic as we collectively work toward reconciliation. We invite you to share your thoughts on how Persephone Theatre can contribute further.
